'BIG FELLOWS' AIM OF U. S. DRY MEN

Local Enforcement Left to State, City In 1925, Haynes Says

69,000 People Think Volstead Acted Unwisely

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—During the last twelve months more than 69,000 persons were arrested for violation of the prohibition laws, according to records of the prohibition department.

Fines and forfeitures aggregating $5,700,000 in criminal cases and $855,300 in civil liability cases were collected.

Records show that there are now approximately 32,000,000 gallons of whiskey still in government bonded warehouses.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Responsibility for local enforcement of prohibition laws during 1925 will be passed to city, county and state authorities, while the federal forces concentrate their efforts on the "big fellows," whose operations run into the realms of high finance, Federal Prohibition Director Roy A. Haynes said today in outlining plans for next year.

"Get the source, get the big fellows," will be the watchword of the federal authorities.

"Co-operation of the federal, state and municipal governments will be the slogan for 1925. That will put the federal prohibition unit in a position to eliminate the sources of illicit whisky supply and attack the big problems that confront us. I am confident that we shall accomplish much toward more and better enforcement of the law.

Local Support Pledged

"The federal government has been pledged the support of the local authorities throughout the United States in the New Year's campaign. This co-operation has been more in evidence during the last year than ever before, and we have every confidence that it will reach the desired plane in 1925.

"This co-operation is essential in arriving at real prohibition. It was the plan of framers of the Volstead act that the petty violators should be taken care of locally and that the federal government, while exercising supervision over this enforcement, should concen-

REPUBLICANS KEEP AFTER RADICALS

'War To Hilt' Is Promised As Coolidge Sanctions Insurgents Ouster

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The war on insurgency in the Republican party is war to the hilt.

President Coolidge now has taken a step which demonstrates to the political world his absolute sympathy with the move whereby the Republican leaders ousted from their ranks the insurgents of the west who, in the last campaign, gave aid and comfort to the La Follette candidacy.

This is the most significant happening in politics since the election and more than anything else may lay the lines of battle for the future. President Taft endeavored to use the weapon of "patronage" to fight the enemy within the ranks, but it proved a boomerang to him. Mr. Coolidge has the advantage, however, of beginning the fight not in the middle of his term when most of the ammunition is usually spent but at the unprecedented time when he has four full years to serve and his own inauguration is still more than two months away.

The president made no public statement when the Republican leaders in the senate and house read out of the party, the La Follette insurgents. In presenting to the senate this week the names of postmasters recommended by anti-La Follette republicanism of Wisconsin, Mr. Coolidge lined himself up definitely with the regulars in Wisconsin and fired the first gun of the 1926 congressional fight when Senator Lenroot, staunch administration sup-

SOUTHLAND NEEDS MORE POWER, CLAIM

Supporters of Swing-Johnson Measure Give Facts and Figures In Support Of Harnessing Colorado River

By FRED J. WALKER
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Power phases of the Swing-Johnson bill for the harnessing of the Colorado river for flood control and reclamation work were minutely detailed today by experts favoring the measure before the Senate irrigation and reclamation committee.

Led by Professor William F. Duraind of Stanford university, noted electrical engineer, the forces back of the measure painted a graphic picture of the development of Southern California and southwestern states that, it was declared, would immediately contract with the government for all of power available as soon as the dam was completed.

"Assuming the dam were started in 1926," said Professor Duraind, "by 1929 or 1930, when the first electrical power would be available, these growing areas would require all of the electricity they could get to keep pace with their development.

Great Demand For Power In South

"Power companies are planning on a consumption of 500,000 horsepower of electricity in Southern California alone in 1925, and it is estimated that the demand will increase at the rate of 110,000 horsepower a year."

Senator Johnson, Republican of California, co-author with Representative Swing of the bill, then declared that the growth of the Los Angeles district was so unprecedented that since the 1920 census, when its population was placed at approximately 1,000,000 people, more than 640,000 new residents had moved into the territory.

"My figures are based on the number of registered voters," said Johnson.

Profitable Market At Once, Claim

"I am presenting these figures," he said, "to show how all of the 1,000,000 maximum horsepower which it is estimated Boulder dam will generate, will immediately have a profitable market and will not as some say, be on the government's hands without a purchaser."

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, pointed out that these figures did not include the power demands of Arizona, New Mexico and Nevada, which at the present time lack enough for their requirements.

T. H. Panter, electrical engineer of Los Angeles, explained how the drought of last summer had so depleted California's water supplies that companies were forced to generate electricity by burning oil, "a very wasteful process," he said.

Dynamiting Incident is Brought Up

The dynamiting early this year of the Los Angeles conduit bringing water from Owens valley was dramatically injected into the hearings today when Ralph L. Criswell, member of the city council, declared that one of the main reasons why his territory wanted a dam at Boulder canyon was to irrigate more than 150,000 acres of land returned to aridity when the Owens river project was completed.

Criswell told the Senate irrigation and reclamation committee of the dynamiting and subsequent releasing of flood gates of the conduit by disgruntled residents of the valley who saw their once fertile fields blacken as their water was cut off.

"While Los Angeles paid for all of the land it secured for water rights, many people in the valley are dissatisfied and we have been having a great deal of trouble with them, which is not yet settled.

"Should we get water from the Colorado river we will be able to allot sufficient water to that district to irrigate more than 150,000 acres which once were fertile," Criswell said.

AMBASSADOR PROPOSAL IS NOT LIKED

Suggestion Made to Society Women Does Not Meet With Much Favor

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The statement of the French ambassador, M. Jusserand, that France expects a long-time moratorium and extra special consideration because of her war losses in the settlement of her $4,000,000,000 war debt to the United States evoked no commendatory response today on the part of administration officials.

On the contrary, it was evident that the ambassador's informal outline of the conditions upon which France expects to settle her debt, did not find any extreme amount of favor in official circles.

At the White House the suggestion was ventured by an administration spokesman that more progress might be made toward adjustment of the debt if the ambassador would make his suggestions to the American debt funding commission instead of to a women's current events club.

Before Society Women

The informal negotiations over the settlement of the French debt, inaugurated by M. Jusserand some weeks ago, have been at a standstill for a considerable period, whether upon orders from Paris or not, officials here are unable to say.

WORKS OF ART IN WINDOW DISPLAY

An attractive window display is that of the Frank Meline Co., 227 South Brand boulevard, the work of Parke Vawter, an artist formerly of Alhambra who is well known for his polychrome work and oil painting, and now art director for the Frank Meline Co.

Both windows are done in polychrome, one containing an oil painting of the W. K. Parkinson home, the other an oil painting of the home of Frank Echols, of Roberts & Echols, druggists. All the picture frames were made by Mr. Vawter in polychrome and the advertising matter features the smaller homes Frank Meline Co. sells, those ranging in price from $3500 to $10,000. Mr. Vawter some time ago designed the float for the Alhambra Business Men's association that took second prize in a music week parade in Los Angeles.

A. H. Woelker is manager of the Glendale office of the Frank Meline Co.

TUJUNGA NOTES

TUJUNGA, Dec. 23.—Elaborate plans are being made for a float to represent Tujunga in the Rose Tournament at Pasadena on New Year day. George Harris, builder of rustic architecture, has designed a model which will be adopted. A. C. Stover, J. O'B. Bodkin and C. H. Conway of the Tujunga Chamber of Commerce are a committee in charge of the plans.

The float will be a huge boulder covered with moss and other hillside vegetation, on which will be a rustic pergola of olive wood. The whole float will be decorated with native Verdugo hills flowers and will bear the inscription "Tujunga, in the Green Verdugo Hills."

Miss Helene Franke and Don S. Wieman, two popular young people of Tujunga, were married Saturday night at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Franke, Los Angeles and Fairview avenues. Rev. Hull of Pasadena was the officiating minister. Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Parcher, who were recently married and who were attended by Miss Franke and Mr. Wieman, were accorded the honor of attending the latest bridal couple at their ceremony.

Miss Franke has been the inspiration for several social affairs during the past few weeks. A pre-wedding linen shower was given her by sister members of the Iota Kapper sorority at the home of Miss Ida Simmons of Hollywood. Some beautiful linen pieces were presented to Miss Franke.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Parcher recently entertained Miss Franke and Mr. Wieman at dinner.

Miss Alice Smelley, Jr., has returned to Tujunga from Los Angeles where she has been confined to a hospital.

Directors for the Tujunga Valley bank for the coming year will be elected at a meeting called for January 14.

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Dec. 23.—A community Christmas celebration will be held here tomorrow night on the City Hall grounds, Colorado boulevard and Maywood street, starting at 8 o'clock.

The Kiwanians are making arrangements for a return visit of Santa Claus and if the good old Saint's supply of candy is not exhausted, a treat will be given to each kiddie on this occasion.

Herbert G. Tovey of Addison way will lead in community singing. There will be an orchestra comprised of Gordon Stevens, Harold Lippold, cornetists; Dr. R. G. Lippold, clarinet; Mrs. R. G. Lippold, French horn; Miss Riner, violinist.

Among the Christmas carols that will be sung are "Joy to the World," "Silent Night" and "I Came Upon the Midnight Clear."

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McKirk, who have just come from Walla Walla, Wash., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mudd, of Caspar avenue. Mr. and Mrs. McKirk expect to make their home in Los Angeles.

Miss Marjorie Ball, assistant at the Eagle Rock Public Library, who has been taking a special training course, will soon complete it and will be back at her usual duties next month.

Proposed Law Would Require Owners' Bond

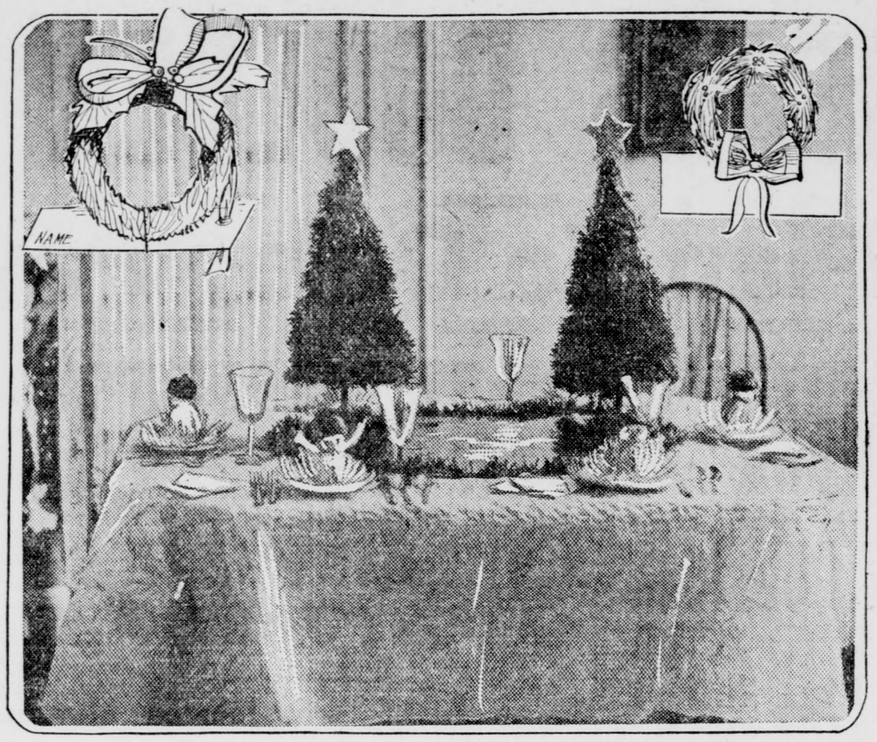
Snowmen For Tiny Tot's Table

The settings shown below would gladden the heart of any child on Christmas day with the realistic Yuletide decorations, including two miniature trees. Inserts show two place cards for adult dinner table.



By MRS. MARY MORTON
Written for The Evening News.

Christmas is the children's festival, we say, but when we have decorated the tree and provided toys for the youngsters to play with we usually forget that the day belongs to them. The trimmings of the table and the menu are almost sure to be planned with the adult of the family and guests only in mind.

The table shown here is set with an eye to pleasing the little tots. A skating pond occupies the center and if one wished she might make or buy some tiny figures to skate over its surface. The "pond" is, of course, a mirror. It is surrounded by crepe paper grass, and two Christmas trees are placed one at each end of the pond. These trees may be made of inverted cones of cardboard draped with shredded green crepe paper. A shining Christmas star is placed at the peak of each. They may be cut from silver or gold paper and pasted on cardboard.

In each place is a quaint little snowman. These are made over egg cups. White crepe paper is tied over the cup. The heads are nut cups with the paper covering them and odd little faces drawn in ink on the sides. Crepe paper caps in any desired shade cover the cups.

At the top of the picture, to the left and right, are suggested place cards for the adults. Cut-out wreaths of holly or poinsettias are fastened to plain white name cards.

The poinsettia has proved almost as popular as the much loved and customary holly in this country. It has the advantage of being strictly American at any rate, and its rich red flowers and deep green leaves carry out the traditional color scheme of the Christmas festival.

Red and green candles used freely throughout the rooms and on the dinner table aid in the decorations. In the table trimmed for adults a large centerpiece of poinsettias and candles set in crepe paper poinsettias has been suggested. These make very effective decorations. Charming and inexpensive table trimmings may be had in crepe paper in the shape of table runners, imitation holly and evergreen festoons, etc. so that even if real holly or pines are out of the question the house may be gaily and appropriately trimmed.

Great excitement was in the air when Santa arrived at 8 o'clock.

"Sh! Here he comes, Oh, Santa, here I am," and similar remarks greeted the patron saints of children and babes in arms were held up for a view of St. Nick, while others up to the age of 12 eagerly hovered around him to be sure he would remember them. In his huge pack Santa had dozens of gaily-colored horns which were distributed to the 15 children present; grown-ups stood up for a glimpse of the spontaneous something that makes Christmas worth while.

Children running here and there to show what was in the mysterious package Santa had taken off the tree for them, were kept busy comparing gifts to find some had received dainty Chinese parasols, others dulcimos, some had monkeys on a string, Felix cats, sets of dishes gladdened the hearts of several little mothers, puzzles, games and dolls were among the lovely presents given.

After the children had partaken of ice cream, cake and lemonade in the dining-room Santa called them back for the drawing of the Packard car donated by E. P. Newport, the 5-lb. box of candy, the gift of B. E. Cook, and a few other packages containing sewing baskets for the lucky girls and roller skates for the boys.

Lucky Young Man

Master William Frampton was the lucky young man who will be flirting with the Glendale speed cops from now on. Miss Virginia Cunningham received the bon bons. As a climax to a perfect evening, Santa gave his last presents, boxes of nuts and candies for the older children while the tiny ones received stockings with Christmas goodies.

Compliments were heard on all sides for the work Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellison had done in making the affair the splendid success it was. They had shopped for each gift, filled each stocking and personally supervised every arrangement. Mrs. Ellison was complimented on her decorations.

Weather conditions will be controlled with the aid of radio sets in the near future, according to scientists.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

There is humor in the weather this Yuletide season.

State Prohibition Director Samuel Rutter of San Francisco predicted a "dry" Christmas for Los Angeles. Looks as though it will be "wet."

Those easterners who coined the phrase "Keep Cool with Coolidge" didn't know how darn cold it was going to be this winter.

And the concentrated attack by eastern papers on Los Angeles has its humorous angle when we read of middle western chickens and turkeys being banned on the east and west coast because of a strange malady while St. Paul and Minneapolis are fighting each other over a small-pox epidemic.

Verily, he who laughs last laughs loudest. Tourists are flocking to Southern California, despite the propaganda designed to keep them home; business is good here despite the efforts of the Denver Post to paint conditions black; and if you will note the weather reports, Denver would give about anything for one warm day this week.

California's climate is a lure. The modern cities, the many miles of pavement which are open the year round and the ideal living conditions for those who have saved a little nest egg for old age are factors like magnetism in drawing the retired residents to this section. When these savings are withdrawn from eastern banks, when the old homes are sold and keep real estate values at par or a little below in the eastern cities there is little wonder why the newspapers "knock" Southern California's charms.

But every knock is a boost it seems. Readers of The Glendale Evening News will do well to order their copies of the New Year's number, now being printed, to refute with facts and figures some of the wild assertions made by eastern publications. Hundreds of new residents have been attracted by previous special editions of The Glendale Evening News. Do your part in boosting Glendale by sending your friends copies of the forthcoming number.

Better yet, subscribe for a year for your eastern friends as a Christmas gift!

The appointment of John King of Hemet as state printer will please the newspaper fraternity of Southern California.

Governor Friend W. Richardson goes out of the Republican ranks to name an efficient man for the position.

The writer personally knows John King as an earnest, honest, competent country editor and publisher.

Boxing commission appointments by the governor also show an impartial attitude. Captain Seth Strellinger of Hollywood is a Legionnaire who knows the boxing game; Chief Louis Almgren of the San Diego fire department is another sound sportsman and William Hanlon, Sacramento hotel man, fits well with the position, yet not one of the trio is a man whom the promoters would have named, perhaps. None of the trio is a political figure, or a newspaper nominee.

"New boxing body pleases fans."

IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY TO CELEBRATE

Atwater Association Is Set For Xmas Tree on Avenue Tonight

The Atwater Improvement association community Christmas tree and holiday celebration will be staged tonight around the huge thirty-foot tree on South Glendale avenue. Santa Claus was scheduled to visit South Glendale and distribute 800 gift packages last night, but rain prevented his appearance. The full program will be held tonight instead, it was announced by P. E. Lipscomb, in charge of the affair.

A Christmas program will open at 7 o'clock with the singing of Christmas carols. Other entertainment features will precede the distribution of gifts to the children. A street dance with an eighteen-piece orchestra will continue until 11 o'clock. The big illuminated Christmas tree is located on Glendale avenue between Gardena and Madera streets.

Christmas Party for Japanese Is Planned

Christmas celebration for the Japanese Sunday school, of which Mrs. A. W. Van Loon is superintendent, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Tropico Presbyterian church. The program, which will be presented in English, will include recitations and singing by the scholars. Special music will be given by three girls from the Jane Couch home for Japanese girls, Burlington avenue, Los Angeles. A brilliant Christmas tree will be ladened with candy and fruit for the children. Members of the board of managers of the ten Glendale churches co-operating in the work, and others interested are invited to attend the party.

Policemen Give Silver Set to Their Chief

Chief John D. Fraser of the Glendale police department was presented yesterday with a silver carving set, as a present from the members of his force. Each piece was engraved on one side with the chief's initial, a large letter "F," and on the other side bore the words, "From the Boys." The gift was presented at the close of the regular monthly meeting of the force.

De Molay Next Meeting To Be Held In January

Announcement is made by Horace Brown of the publicity committee of De Molay, that the next meeting will be January 8. At that time there will be dinner at 6:30 o'clock. Plans are to be made for the time and place of the next dance.

When Santa Goes Traveling

Kiddies and grownups who find themselves aboard any of the thirty crack trains of the UNION PACIFIC SYSTEM on Christmas Eve will not miss any of the fun, for Santa Claus will be present. He will be boss, too, for he will wear the conductor's cap, and clothed with this authority, what he says, goes.

Santa Claus, aided by more than 200 helpers on trains and stationed in all parts of the west, is putting over one of the biggest jobs in a long, memorable career, according to C. A. Redmond, city passenger agent for the Union Pacific system with headquarters in Glendale.

"It sounded easy when the Union Pacific, thoughtful of those who would otherwise miss Christmas by having to travel, ordered that Christmas be carried to them aboard its crack trains," Mr. Redmond said. "But when it came time for Santa to make arrangements to 'do his stuff' aboard over thirty fliers roaring simultaneously across all parts of the west between Kansas City, Omaha, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, he found it a job that called for fast modern organization.

"Santa is noted as an organizer, however, and when he turned railroader he was given every facility the transcontinental line afforded in order that every detail might go through without a hitch. Now everything is ready. The staffs of packers which for a week turned the Union Pacific headquarters into a Christmas toyshop are through and the big holly-decked packs for each train are waiting at the points where they will be put aboard in time to open them for the Christmas eve party. With them wait skilled helpers to see that Santa Claus' every order is carried out. And Santa's orders will supersede everything on Christmas eve, state operating officials of the big system. The conductors, the trainmen, the enginemen of the limiteds are ready, and to them orders were superfluous. How well they know what is needed, these men wise in the experience of many Christmasless Christmas eves aboard trains.

"The idea of carrying Christmas to those who can't be home has spread past the arrangements for parties and trees on the trains with the co-operation of cities and civic bodies along the lines. Christmas carols and special celebrations as the trains pass are planned by dozens of cities linking up the spirit of the travelers' holiday over the thousands of miles of the west."

Sir E. Alexander Hyers sang "Salutation of the Dawn." He was accompanied by Miss Lila Leitch. Mrs. Max Lynn Green gave a reading, "The Gift of the Magi." Following these numbers the installation of all other officers took place.

Plays Lead

JOSEPH M'MANUS, who takes a prominent part in "I Love You," the farce to be presented by the Dobinson Players for the next two weeks.

The Dobinson Players are going to aid Glendale in making the Christmas season even more merry than is proverbial, as they are giving the snappy farce, "I Love You," for the next two weeks, beginning with the Wednesday matinee. Written by William Le Baron, who did much to increase the laughter of a weary world, it tells the story of a millionaire contending that love is but a question of environment, which he tries to prove by a bet. His intention is to show that under the right conditions any two people could be made to imagine themselves in love. The mirth-provoking situations as the experiment is tried on three couples makes a joyous evening.

Featured in the cast is Joseph McManus, well-known eastern actor, whose experience is widespread; William H. Stephens, who has made a hit through his good acting as well as pleasing personality; Mary Isabelle Alpaugh, clever and capable ingenue; Richard Ehlers, the favorite juvenile of the company; Gertrude Rothe, Arthur Lovejoy, who, as Lord Andrew Gordon in "Adam and Eva" was one of the hits of the show; Rosamonde Joyzelle, and Thyra Ruhland, both of the last-named being well known for their several seasons with the Pilgrimage Play.

Ecuador has a new railway under construction.

A dance by Blossom Moore; vocal solos, "The Toreador's Love Song" and "A Heart That's Free," by Mrs. Wenzel, accompanied by Mrs. Boyer, and presentation of past commander's jewel to Retiring Commander Eminent Sir Robert M. Grumbling by Eminent Sir Roy V. Hogue, concluded the program. Eminent Sir Grumbling responded to the presentation. The address of the evening was given by Incoming Commander Sir Worley, in which he set out his aims and hopes for the coming year, and pledged his untiring efforts to the cause of Templarism in Glendale.

AN OLD FRIEND—

Is one who has learned to be charitable to our faults.
Must be skilled in the art of forgetting.
Is like an old shoe; adjusted to our pecularities.
Is one who believes in us, whether we explain ourselves or not.
Is always worth more than he costs.

WAR ON TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

This country should declare war on traffic accidents at once. Twenty-two thousand persons were killed last year and 678,000 were injured in motor accidents in the United States. There is a great deal of talk about this menace, considerable misdirected effort, but very little is accomplished. The way it looks now, 1925 will see another big army mowed down by this ruthless juggernaut. You may be a victim, or I.

School children are being taught that care should be used in crossing streets, and the contests that are being held among the children in essay writing and poster designing are excellent. But the children in the schools today are the auto drivers of tomorrow, and they should be taught also at an early age that care in handling a car is essential.

The confusion of traffic laws in different localities and different states tends to increase motor accidents and the ridiculously small fines meted out to those who are really careless drivers have their bad effect.

If the efforts of the authorities could be centered upon those who are reckless or who drive while intoxicated, and less attention be given to minor infractions of the rules by really careful drivers, the result would be increased safety on the road. If those who carelessly endanger or take life were given adequate punishment for their crimes this evil would lessen considerably.

And the road hog must be dealt with also. He is the most obnoxious and the most dangerous driver on the highway. He refuses to give the right of way, he crowds cars he is passing, he takes curves on the wrong side of the road, he parks his car on the highway when he has occasion to stop, he disregards the rights of others and the rules of common courtesy. He is more to be feared than the speeder.

The traffic problem is one of the big questions today. It is a pity it cannot be solved without such an appalling sacrifice of human life.

LAWS AND SELF-RESTRAINT

A Harvard professor has written a book, "Democracy and Leadership," in which he shows that what we need today is not more laws but "the will to refrain." He says that to call uplifters and statute-mongers Puritans is to pay them an undeserved compliment, for they disregard the Puritan practice of self-control.

One reason that our courts are ineffective is is that they do not have the support of public opinion. There has grown up in the people too large a sympathy for the criminal, too great a tendency to feel that he is the product of his environment and is not morally responsible. This sort of sentimentalism stunts the growth of self-restraint, and without self-restraint, laws are useless.

We are all the product of our environment, to a certain extent, but nearly all of us are reasoning beings, too, with the ability to know the difference between right and wrong and to make a choice. We make a grave mistake when we put too much emphasis upon the power of environment and not enough upon the truth that self-control is possible and necessary.

Law and order must begin with the individual. According to this professor, the multitude of laws that are being passed is one proof that we are growing increasingly lawless.

DIVINITY OF CHRIST

Giovanni Papini, great Biblical autnority, is going to prove beyond a doubt, the divinity of Christ. Many have already found this proof in the Bible and in their own hearts. Others will never believe. The fate of practically all Christian denominations hangs on that one thread. Could the divinity of Christ be positively disproved the foundations of most of our churches would crumble to nothing. Should it be positively proved to the satisfaction of everyone then the religious world would present a solid front.

But the divine plan has not, in the thousands of years human beings have inhabited the earth, been presented to men with such unmistakable proof that all of them are convinced on the same beliefs. Human experience in the past is pretty good proof that the world never will be unanimous at any time on the matter of religious belief. Faith will continue to be the backbone of most of the Christian denominations. The modernists and the fundamentalists may go on with their argument and Papini may continue with his research, but they will not be able to change the religious convictions of the people to any great extent.

RELIGION IMPROVING IN QUALITY

Those who believe that the world is growing better daily will be pleased with this confirmation from the lips of John D. Rockefeller, jr., who says that the religion of today is of a better quality than that of thirty-four years ago. Religion has developed with civilization. A century ago it was austere in dress and confined to the meeting house, and its chief aim was the salvation of the soul from damnation. Warmth, beauty, joy and freedom in religion were unknown. Today the emphasis of religion is on service and the making of worthy members of society.

Religion today is applied to human affairs. It is the inspiration for hospitals, colleges, child labor and factory laws and all phases of human welfare. The true spirit of religion is love of our brother, and through this spirit religion is succeeding as never before.

JUDGE NOT

The Bible says, "Judge not," and an old saying has it that posterity gives to every man his true honor. It is true that we rarely get the right perspective on a man's life while we are close to him. But after he has gone and we can look back upon him without the heat of enthusiasm or the cold of prejudice we can see him as he really was.

This fact, then, should make us go slow in forming opinions and making hasty judgments of men in public life as well as of those we meet and with whom we mingle day by day. If we take plenty of time to condemn, when we think condemnation is necessary, we may never have to do it. If we wait until all the evidence is in we may reverse our decisions.

Riches denoted by the dollar mark are not half so good as riches denoted by the soul mark.

It may be all right to follow a fad, but it isn't necessary to swallow it.

'LOVE IS BLIND'

Steerers and Drifters

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Most of the people of the world are drifters; a few are steerers.

That is, most people take things as they come. They have luck. If things break their way they are happy, if otherwise, they are miserable.

They are like leaves floating in the sunbeam, like derelicts, at the mercy of wind and wave.

There are a few, however, who make things happen, they do not wait for them to happen.

If things are wrong they proceed to make them right. If they have bad luck they turn it into good. If obstacles confront them they overcome them and circumvent them. These people usually have two things: they have an end which they wish to attain and they have the unshakeable will to attain it.

By and by fortune gets tired of buffetting them and things coopearte with them. This is about all there is to a lucky star, or to one's destiny, or the will of the high gods.

These are but ignorant and superstitious ways of expressing the fact that one has an object in life and a determination to attain it.

When the clouds are thick they go on in the dark, when it is sunshine they go on. Through cold and heat, snow and rain, fair weather and foul, they proceed. They know what they want to do and they are at it every moment of the time.

By and by circumstances give way and the indomitable will finds an opening to succeed.

They have oars in their boat and they cooperate with the currents and the wind to make the boat go where they will.

They do not lie at the bottom of an oarless boat and curse when it is bad weather and sing when it is good.

They are in command of their lives. Not wholly in command, of course, because circumstances affect them to a certain degree, but they cooperate with circumstances and find some way to make themselves master.

These are the successful ones. The unsuccessful are the drifters.

Horoscope

Astrologers read this as a very doubtful day, for although Uranus is in benefic aspect early in ehe morning, Saturn, Neptune and Mercury are strongly adverse later.

While there is a rule making for alert minds and keen intuition, it is well to delay acting on any impulse that has to do with business prosperity or domestic happiness.

All the signs appear to indicate a continuation of the strong reaction against the established order of things and many radical changes in American ideals.

It is prognosticated that in the economic world labor will have an important part in administrative as well as productive lines.

This is not a favorable sway under which to start on long journeys and the ocean is especially menacing.

Severe storms at sea and even a shipwreck appear to be foreshadowed.

Aviation is subject to a good direction of the stars that promises great advance and much governmental help in the new year.

It is well to beware of letter-writing, especially where important business matters are concerned, while this configuration prevails.

The seers predict that a great deal of discontent and wrong thinking will be productive of sickness and an epidemic is foretold.

Aspects today that are favorable to the dentist and the beauty-doctor are discerned by astrologers.

Art in all its branches is to be favored in 1925, for it will be applied in many utilitarian ways.

Balls and all social entertainments should be most happy in their results, it is foretold, for there will be keen interest on the part of eligible young men.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will make many new friends in the coming year, which should be a fortunate one in many ways.

Children born on this day probably will rise rapidly in life. These subjects of Capricorn have many Sagittarius traits and would be most successful all through their lives. Girls will marry happily.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED

AN ALPINE PICTURE

Lest the dread avalanche come crashing down!
How many leagues away is yonder town
Set flower-wise in the valley! Far beneath
Our feet lies summer; here a realm of death,
Where never flower has blossomed nor bird flown.
The ancient watercourses are all strown
With drifts of snow, fantastic wreath on wreath;
And peak on peak against the stainless blue
The Alps like towering campanili stand,
Wondrous, with pinnacles of frozen rain,
Silvery, crystal, like the prism in hue.
O tell me, love, if this be Switzerland—
Or is it but the frosk-work on the pane?

Who's Who

Unaware that he had received the Nobel Prize in medicine and physics combined, Dr. Willem Einthoven of the Leyden University, the Netherlands, has been traveling and lecturing in America since October. Official notification of the award followed him around until it found him in New York City a few days ago, after he had been denying press notices of its bestowal.

The Nobel Prize came to Dr. Einthoven as a result of his researches in electro-physiology. His studies have centered around the discovery made in 1887 by A. D. Waller, a German, that the electrical disturbances produced by the human heartbeat could be detected at the surface of the body.

To measure these phenomena and to ascertain how far they might be of service to the physiologist in understanding the nature of the heart's action and to the physician in recognizing and distinguishing between the various forms of heart disease Dr. Einthoven invented the string galvanometer. The first extensive description of this instrument was published in 1903, and in 1906 there appeared in a French physiological journal an account of Dr. Einthoven's own investigations with it. Since then scientific physicians all over the world have been securing the instruments as fast as they were available.

The device writes a photographic record on a moving strip of sensitized paper. It is in use in most of the important hospitals and clinics of the world and in private offices of many physicians who specialize in diseases of the heart, and it has almost revolutionized the treatment in certain types of heart disease.

Its use is not limited to such cases, however. Dr. Einthoven has himself employed it in studying the passage of nerve impulses. It is also gradually coming into use in the laboratories of electrical engineers. Dr. Einthoven and his son, Dr. W. F. Einthoven, an electrical engineer, have devised a modification which is capable of responding to electrical oscillations whose frequencies exceed 100,000 per second. They have been able to record, without the use of a rectifying device, they say, the long wave length radio telegraphic signals. Still another use is in transmitting photographs by wire and radio.

Dr. Einthoven came to this country to deliver the first of a series of lectures which has been founded at Harvard University in memory of Dr. Edward K. Dunham of New York. After spending three weeks in Boston he toured the middle west. He is in his sixty-fourth year, and since 1885 has been professor of physiology at Leyden University; a post for which he was recommended just before he graduated from Utrecht, in 1885, by the master, Donders, then the leading Dutch physiologist and a world figure in scientific circles.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

The love of the new born babe with its groping hands, the love of the growing child for his parents; the impetuous, all enrapturing love of youth for youth; the sweet companionship of wedded love that grows deeper and more beautiful as time goes on; and then the love of autumn.

What is it?

Scott in his "Lay of the Last Minstrel" says:

True love's the gift which God has given
To man alone beneath the heaven:
It is not fantasy's hot fire,
Whose wishes, soon as granted, fly;
It liveth not in fierce desire,
With dead desire it doth not die;
It is the secret sympathy,
The silver link, the silken tie,
Which heart to heart, and mind to mind,
In body and in soul can bind.

Love rules the court, the camp, the grove,
And men below, and saints above;

* * *

Southey in "The Curse of Kehama," says:

Love is indestructible;
Its holy flame for ever burneth;
From heaven it came, to heaven returneth;
It soweth here with toil and care,
But the harvest-time of love is there.

They sin who tell us Love can die:
With life all other passions fly,
All others are but vanity.

* * *

The rose is fairest when 'tis budding new,
And hope is brightest when it dawns from fears.
The rose is sweetest washed with morning dew,

The City Trustees have taken up the matter of opening Brand Boulevard across the Los Angeles river and direct into the city of Los Angeles.

Many loads of snowballs were brought to Los Angeles Monday and young and old enjoyed snowball fights on the streets.

Monday a party of six tourists from the far east, enjoyed Spanish dinner at La Ramada. Seeing orange trees in bearing for the first time was the most important pleasure of the occasion.

AUTHORS DELUGE STATE ARCHIVES

Thousands Register Stories They Believe Priceless To Movie Screen

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 23.—Authors, amateur and professional, are taking advantage of the protection afforded by registration of their scenarios in the Capitol archives, according to Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan.

All sections of the state are represented with Southern California well to the fore. Recently an Angeleno registered a scenario with the title, "It Happened in San Francisco." Another resident south of Tehachepi has filed for reference an effusion entitled "The Cafeteria Glide," and a third has copyrighted a prospective record breaker on the silver film captioned: "Smile, When You Call that Name Given Till Sundown to Leave Town."

Sacramento boasts the author of "Holy Mackerel," and Alameda is the residence of a woman who hopes to achieve fame when her brain child, "How Bridget Served the Tomatoes Undressed," is produced.

Home Brew

"Home Brew" is the result of midnight cogitation on the part of a Chico litterateur and "The Volstead Hero," was conceived by a San Diegan.

"The Mysterious Fish" is the title under which a Stockton writer sets forth his ideas but since Secretary Jordan does not allow perusal of these offerings it is not known whether reference is made to get-rich-quick victims or the suckers in Stockton slough.

A girl disciple of Laura Jean Libbey writes under the heading "The Scent-Poisoned Necklace of County Albino," and a pessimist glooms along under the caption "Just One Blamed Thing After Another."

Escaped Maniac Flags Train to Get Matches

NORWICH, N. Y., Dec. 23.—Sheriff Leon M. Walworth captured an escaped inmate from the Binghampton State hospital after the man had taken possession of the Haynes flag station of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad and flagged every train that came along to ask the engineer for a match.

The man drove the regular flagman from the station, filled up his pipe and sat down to await developments. Finding he had no match, and having driven everyone else from the station, he adopted the novel expedient of asking each passing engineer for a "light."

Jap Counterfeiter Is Help in Caging Gang

HONOLULU, Dec. 23.—A prison sentence of one hour was imposed by Federal Judge J. T. DeBolt, in the United States District court, upon K. Nakaya, Japanese counterfeiter, who turned government witness and gave the authorities information by which they were able to obtain indictments against twenty-one members of a gang of Japanese making bogus money in various parts of the territory. Ten of the cases have already been successfully prosecuted. Nakaya's hour of imprisonment was spent in the office of the United States marshal.

The Wrath To Come

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, Copyright 1924

CHAPTER LII

"I missed you," he acknowledged simply.

"Dear man!" she murmured. "And yet you were trying all the time to look as though I were an intruder, as though I had committed some unforgivable sin. I suppose I have really," she went on. "There are some who will never forgive me. An hour or two ago I thought that I should never forgive myself. The greatest shame of life seemed so near."

He had the sudden feeling of a terrified animal. Every door of escape seemed closed, and with it all there was the hateful singing in his blood, the crude insistence of primitive passion. Susan seemed to be receding, to be watching him from afar off, a little sad—just a dream. Again he swung himself into battle.

"A delightful dinner, and such a dinner as I never dreamed of alone with you," he declared. "Now comes the difficult part. Can we get into the smokeroom?"

"Easily," she scoffed.

"They made their way, holding on to the tables. The yacht was plunging and rolling even more than ever.

"I ought to go on deck," he told her, "and see how things are looking."

"Presently," she pleaded. "Come into the music room for a minute or two. That will leave me only a step across to my room. We can have our coffee there."

They made their way into the little rose and white room. Opposite, through the hooked door, was a glimpse of her own suite. The steward brought them in coffee and liqueurs. He steadily himself with difficulty. Suddenly one of the lights went out. Only the standard was left heavily shaded and obscured.

"The captain told me to say, sir," Brookes reported, "that all was well on deck, but there has been a mishap to the batteries supplying the electric light, and we may be short for an hour or so. The electrician is already at work repairing."

Grant nodded.

"I shall come on deck before I go to bed," he said.

"The roaring of the wind seemed louder, and the beating of the great waves over the portholes more insistent. She felt her way to the music stool.

"Now," she announced, "I shall sing to you. You shall hear my singing above the storm, if I have enough voice left. Come near, Grant. Come where I can see you."

Her fingers wandered over the keys, then struck a few familiar chords.

"Hackneyed," she laughed up at him, "but so apposite. Listen, dear man of surpassing strength."

She sang "Mon couer s'ouvre a ta voix," sang with her voice sometimes drowned by the booming of the sea and wind, sometimes rising clear and insistent through the momentary silences, always with that faint note of an actual passion, which fired his blood. When she had stopped she held out her arms. He took her gently into his but he held her away.

"Don't do this, Gertrude," he begged.

Her head sank back. He saw a look of absolute terror in her eyes. She was like a limp burden in his arms.

"I am faint," she whispered. "Carry me across."

He staggered with her out of the room, across the passageway, unhooked her door, and bent over her, alarmed. Suddenly there was a shock greater than they had felt before. The light in the stateroom went out, the door slammed. He saw her eyes open, blaze up at his through the darkness. Her arms around his neck were suddenly like a vise. She clung to him madly.

"Grant," she cried, "you have to kiss me now. This may be the end!"

BOOK TWO
Chapter I

Grant, returning from an early stroll in the streets of New York on the morning after his arrival looked with dismay at the three capable and determined-looking young men who occupied chairs in his sitting room, and at the young lady, who, having placed her notebook upon the table, was deeply immersed in a novel. They all arose at his entrance. Jim Havers of the New York Letter was the first to announce himself.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Slattery."

"Tarleton, of the Moon," his neighbor announced. "Glad to welcome you back to New York, Mr. Slattery."

"Booker, of the Chronicle," the third young man echoed. "Hope we're not too early for you."

"I'm Phoebe Smiles," the young lady told him, with the air of one who imparts information which should be entirely unnecessary. "You know about me, I dare say."

Grant shook hands with all of them.

"Look here," he said, "I'm very glad to see you and to be welcomed back home, but what's it all about? I'm not a novelist, or a politician, or an English nobleman. You can't get head lines out of me."

"Not so sure that we mightn't, sir," Tarleton replied cheerfully. "We thought, as we all arrived in a bunch, we'd better wait and see whether you had any preference as to which section of the Press you talked to. If you haven't you can give it to us all together. We can use the stuff a bit differently."

"But I'm no use to you fellows," Grant protested. "I'd just as soon talk to you all together as singly. In fact, I'd rather. It saves time. But what do you want me to talk about?"

"First of all your voyage home," Tarleton suggested. "Some hurricane you struck, eh?"

THE GATEWAY

Elinor Glyn makes an interesting reply to those critics who have attacked her writings as being immoral. The picturization of her novel, "His Hour is showing at the Gateway theatre the last times today. It follows her screen version of "Three Weeks."

"I have often been condemned as an immoral writer," says Mrs. Glyn.

"That is not American justice, and I challenge anyone to carefully read every word of 'His Hour,' or any other story I have written with an open mind, not with the determined idea to search for sensualities, and then see if he can find a single sentence taken with its full context and meaning, which can degrade—a single insinuation that is base or dishonorable—a single place where my heroes and heroines do not act as ladies and gentlemen of breeding."

Elinor Glyn has chosen Aileen Pringle and John Gilbert as her favorite screen lovers, and they are to be seen in the leading roles of "His Hour," which King Vidor directed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"I Love You" which will open Wednesday night at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre, was written by William Le Baron and is said to have been inspired by the popular song of that name. It is presented by the Dobinson Players, who last week and the week before scored such a hit in the comedy 'Only 38.' The curtain will rise at 8:15 o'clock.

A synopsis of this play was read by Mrs. Florence Dobinson on Sunday night, over KFI, when a special orchestration of the song "I Love You," arranged by Gladys H. Lott, was broadcast. Miss Lott is musical director of the Dobinson Players. This orchestration will be played as an overture number by Miss Lott and her associates, Mrs. Frederickson and Mrs. Sharkey.

New England Railroad To Use Motor Busses

BOSTON Dec. 23.—The new plans of the Boston & Maine railroad calling for the abandonment of 1,000 miles of unprofitable rail lines does not necessarily mean that the road is to abandon the territory covered by those lines. Transportation men here see in this move the entry of the Boston & Maine into the motor bus field on an extensive scale through the Boston & Maine Transportation Co.

Southern Banks Loan Money On Spot Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 23.—Banks throughout the cotton belt are encouraging the holding of spot cotton by offering the cheapest money producers have ever been able to obtain. Exporters and shippers who need cotton to fill orders are finding it hard to buy.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SANTA CLAUS

When Uncle Wiggily started to hop to the woods one day to look for an adventure, the bunny rabbit gentleman heard behind him a scurrying of feet in the dried leaves.

"Goodness!" thought Mr. Longears, as he got ready to hop very fast, "I hope that isn't either the Fox, the Bob Cat or the Wolf coming after me because I threw prickly holly wreaths at them yesterday."

Uncle Wiggily looked back over his shoulder and saw Sammie Littletail, the rabbit boy, hopping after him.

"Wait a minute, Uncle Wiggily! Wait a minute!" begged Sammie, who was almost out of breath from hopping.

"What's the matter? Is some bad chap chasing you?" asked the bunny uncle.

"No, I just want to come with you," answered Sammie. "Oh, I'm so happy, aren't you, Uncle Wiggily?" he asked, giving his pink nose a little twinkle. "I'm so glad and happy. Let's talk about Christmas and hanging up stockings, and Christmas trees and Santa Claus and all things like that."

"All right," agreed Uncle Wiggily, with a chuckling laugh. What shall we talk about first, Sammie?"

"Let's talk about them all at once," cried the little rabbit boy, who was bubbling over with joy. "Oh, I'm so glad it's going to be Christmas."

"So am I," said the rabbit gentleman.

Then he and Sammie hopped on through the woods, talking of the coming of Christmas, which was but two days away. And, all the while, Uncle Wiggily was looking for an adventure. For hardly a day passed without one, and he felt that he would have no appetite for dinner unless he first had an adveneure.

However, the rabbit gentleman was beginning to think none was to happen this day, when, all of a sudden, just behind him, as Sammie ran on a little way ahead, the bushes parted and a voice whispered:

"Quick, Uncle Wiggily! Get Sammie out of the way a moment! I am in trouble, but I don't want him to see me. No children are ever allowed to see me so near Christmas, you know!"

Uncle Wiggily took one look at the parted bushes. First he thought he was going to see the Fox, the Wolf or the Bob Cat. What he saw, however, was a big bunch of white whiskers, and a smiling face with a red nose.

"Send Sammie out of the way," went on the voice. So Uncle Wiggily called:

"Run on ahead, Sammie, and see if you can find some holly bushes. I'll make you a wreath if you find the red berries and green leaves."

"All right," answered the rabbit boy. On he hopped, and when he was out of sight in the woods Uncle Wiggily went behind the bush, when the voice had called him. There he found a jolly old man with a pack on his back, but one foot was caught down in a hole in the ground.

"I'm stuck here," said the jolly old man. "I'm caught fast! I can't get my foot out of this hole. But if you dig around it, making the hole larger, I can pull out my foot and be on my way with my pack."

"I'll do that!" cried Uncle Wiggily, laughing. "I'm glad I can help you." So the bunny dug the hole larger, the jolly old man pulled out his foot and away he ran with his pack, just as Sammie came back to tell where there were some holly bushes.

"To whom were you talking when I came along, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the rabbit boy.

"Oh, you'll know when Christmas comes," answered Mr. Longears. "I'm not allowed to tell you now."

Now can any of your guess? If you can, keep it a secret until day after tomorrow. And if the looking glass doesn't try to peek around the corner of the oven door to see what the gas stove is cooking for dinner, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Christmas.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

COMMON COLD (ACUTE CORYZA)—Part 4.

We had the third paper on colds yesterday. If you missed the series you may have it by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

TO PREVENT COLDS

First, see that your personal hygiene is correct. (Diet, fresh air, clothes, exercises, etc.) Cold bathing, for those who react well, undoubtedly does help to "harden" the system. Those who cannot take cold baths can dash the chest and arms with cold water. Second, do not come in close contact with those who are suffering from acute colds, for such colds are contagious. Third, have any malformations of growth in the nose or throat attended to.

TREATMENT

The preliminary symptoms of colds are usually dryness of the nose and dryness and soreness of the throat. Often a local treatment with a swab or spray with an antiseptic solution, applied two or three times a day, will kill off the germs and abort a cold. We gave some formulas for the local treatment in the preceding papers.

If you do not succeed in aborting a cold, it will take a definite course. Like other infectious diseases it is self-limited. Sooner or later the system manufactures a defense which overcomes it. One cold, instead of making one immune predisposes one to another, so try to get yourself up to par as soon as possible. Unless you are under the care of a physician internal drugs should not be used. The local treatment should be used throughout the cold as it helps to shorten its course.

If a cold is very bad it it best to stay in bed for a few days. Have a paper bag pinned near to put the soiled handkerchiefs or cloths in; burn the clothes and have the handkerchiefs boiled before they are handled again. A hot sweating bath, if you do not get chilled afterward, may help in the beginning of a cold. A mild cathartic is necessary if you are constipated. Keep very warm all during a cold but have fresh air night and day.

DIET

The diet should consist largely of fruits, vegetables, milk and cereals, omitting the meats, fish and egg-whites for a period. You will defeat your purpose if you overeat, but do not undereat.

(There are no "mucous forming" foods. As I have told you before, it has been conspicuously demonstrated that diets lacking in vitamins and mineral matters will cause inflammation of the mucous membranes, as well as of other tissues of the body. There are no foods which in themselves will cause mucous. We have articles on balanced diet, acidosis and auto-intoxication which you may have if you self-address and stamp the envelope you send for them.)

COLDS WHILE REDUCING

If you should get an acute cold while you are on a reducing diet it is best to go back to the maintenance diet. It is not necessary to gain. It has been my own personal experience and observation that colds will hang on longer if one is undernourished. Undernourished children and adults suffer frequently from colds as well as other disturbances.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

Many children and babies have chronic colds through getting uncovered at night during the cold weather. At this time children should sleep in sleeping bags, or their blankets and covers should be pinned down—not too tightly—with safety pins. Get some of the horse blanket pins. They will not pull open. It is well to have a little shawl or baby blanket over the children's shoulders, pinned on carefully, and if it is very cold, put a cap on. Do not be afraid this will weaken them. These last precautions are also good for adults on very cold nights.

I am going to repeat, because it is important, that if you have a baby, when you are suffering from a cold you must wear a mask of several thicknesses of gauze over your nose and mouth while you handle him, and wash your hands thoroughly each time before you touch him or any things that come in contact with him.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

ANSWERED LETTERS

E. K.—Massage your throat with a nourishing cream to help fill out the hollows. If you are underweight or in need of being built up, try cod liver oil during the winter months.

Lilian N.—A girl of 17 years with a height of five feet, five and a half inches, should weigh from 115 to 120 pounds.

Miss T. L. H.—Several times a week apply hot cloths to the blackheads which will open the pores and soften the impact; after this treatment massage with a cleansing cream to dissolve the oil. Remove the cream by scrubbing with a fine soup and very warm water, followeed by rinses in which the water is cooled until the final rinse is extremely cold. If you keep up this treatment for a number of weeks there will be no need for squeezing out the larger impacts. The holes you have made already will also improve in time if you keep up the cleansing as directed.

Miss G. F.—If your teeth are not causing the bad breath, possibly your digestion is at fault, or there may be some catarrhal tendencies. Consult your doctor if you cannot help yourself.

Martha E.—Try rubbing the oil from your hair with soft towels just as if you were drying it after a shampoo. There is faulty elimination that causes oily scalps so you will only be able to rid yourself of the trouble by correcting the cause.

Anxious—There is an operation for protruding ears. You can cover your ears with your hair so they will not be noticed until you are able to have the operation performed.

Mildred F.—After you have fully developed your legs will not appear to be out of proportion to the rest of your body. Massage will help and so will exercise, if you practice them regularly.

A Reader—There is nothing better for the complexion than rice powder as it is pure starch. If there is any adverse comment about this it is intended only for powders that are mixtures and in which rice is only one of the ingredients. The fault then would not be with the rice but with something else that was combined with it.

Elsie B.—Alcohol and water will not have any effect upon your hair in making it curl as if it were natural. Use soft towels to remove the excessive oil from your hair.

Miss I. A. D.—The pilocarpine hair tonic, often mentioned in the "Chats," will help your mother recover her hair. If you wish the formula I will be glad to mail it to you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed en ope for mailing. You can use the same tonic to cure your dandruff. It is best that the old hair should come out as it is probably all dead as a result of the severe fever in your mother's illness.

Tomorrow—Foot Exercises

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question—The Editor.

Class Has Meeting

Members of the Live Cole class of the Central Christian church held an enjoyable Christmas party last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Gingerich, 1365 Alameda street. Sixty members and friends of the class were present. Interesting games had been arranged for the evening's entertainment. Harry Marple impersonated Santa Claus, presenting each one present with a humorous gift. A surprise feature of the evening for the guests was the presentation of a birthday cake to Mrs. Gingerich, yesterday being her birthday. Mr. Gingerich presented the cake. Mrs. P. V. Crickard, president of the Stitch and Chatter club, presented the Live Cole class with a picture for the classroom and $10 to be paid on the piano in the classroom. Harley B. Yakel, president of the Live Cole class, accepted the gifts in behalf of the class. A communication from Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Thompson, who were unable to be present, was read. Mr. Thompson is teacher of the class, and he and his wife are leaving Friday for a trip to Detroit, Mich., and Indianapolis, Ind. The women of the class furnished candy, which Mrs. Homer B. Miller took home and packed in two large boxes, for Mr. Thompson and Dr. Logan, the latter being assistant teacher of the class. Refreshments of home-made cake and candy and coffee were served later in the evening. Dr. Logan will be the teacher of the class during the absence of Mr. Thompson.

Christmas Cheer

Members of the Loyal Women's Bible class of Central Christian church will remember sick members of the Christian church and friends of the church tomorrow afternoon when they take them gifts of jellies, candy and custards. The sum of $15 has been donated by the class for helping the less fortunate. Mrs. C. S. Archer is president of the class.

With Miss Read

Miss Ethel Read of 701 North Central avenue was hostess last night to members of the Girl's Friendly society of St. Mark's Episcopal chruch at the Christmas party. Forty members of the society were present and guests of honor were Rev. Philip K. Kemp, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church and P. E. Cory. The first part of the evening was spent in playing progressive hearts, nine tables being in play. Miss Mabel Evarts was awarded the first prize and Miss Ruth Clay received the consolation prize. After the card games refreshments of ice cream, homemade cake and mints were served. Misses Ethel Read and Louise Ayala sang "Holy Night" with Miss Grace Crampton, president of the class, as accompanist. After refreshments had been served the card tables were removed from the room and the lights turned out for a short time. When the lights were again flashed on Santa Claus who was impersonated by Miss Gladys Kattleman, appeared from behind the large Christmas tree in the den. Gifts were distributed from the tree by Santa Claus. Potted cyclamen plants were presented by Santa Claus to Mesdames P. E. Cory, E. H. Parker, J. J. Gaulrapp, Fred Kattleman and Philip K. Kemp as gifts from the society in appreciation of their assistance to them during the past year. Letters which he had received from the members during the year telling of their Christmas wants were read by Santa Claus and afforded much merriment. The letters had been arranged as a poem.

Reader Friend—"What are dasheens?"

Answer—In looks and in food properties they are very much like potatoes but contain less water and, in consequence, the content of starch and protein is about one-half greater than that of the patato. The United States Department of Agriculture has a Farmer's Bulletin, number 1396, on this vegetable which is free to all who write to Washington requesting it. It also contains many recipes for cooking the dasheen.

Answer—Write to any large book store. They will no doubt be able to order such a book for you if they have not one in stock. I regret that I do not happen to know of any.

Mrs. T. F.—"What can be done for a floor which is warped from letting water run under a linoleum rug?"

Answer—Wring a cloth out of very hot water and put it on the floor, then immediately weight down with something very heavy and let the cloth stay just as it is for several days (it will of course soon become cold, but it is best not to remove it till the warp has disappeared). This process is generally successful although in some cases the warp goes but returns. It is worth trying.

G. A.—"I want other readers to have my recipe for delicious Doughnuts Made Without Shortening: Beat two eggs in a bowl and add to them one cup sugar, one-half teaspoon of vanilla extract, one cup of sweet milk and three cups of flour sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Mix well, then drop in hot fat by teaspoonful putting only a few in at a time and frying till they turn over and are a golden brown. Drain on crumpled brown paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar."

Answer—It was good of you to send us this recipe. You are right in giving the directions to fry only a few at a time. When too many are fried together they are likely to touch each other thereby creating steam and causing the doughnuts to crack. For the sake of the inexperienced cook I will explain that the doughnut generally turns itself over in the fat when it is sufficiently cooked on one side; this is because the cooked side is lighter than the uncooked upper side and the weight of the upper side turns it over.

TWO FOOTBALL CRITICS GIVE VIEWS OF CONTEST

Copeland C. Burg Believes Fighting Irish Coming With Blood Riled

By COPELAND C. BURG
For International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—When Knute Rockne's galloping Horsemen put their footprints in the Rose Bowl here New Year's and flaunt their tails in the faces of Glenn Warner's Stanford warriors, look out for a modern massacre. The inside dope is that Rockne would be tickled to make the famous General Custer killing fade into dim history.

Because, three or four years ago, California and Stanford were said to have refused to play Notre Dame and glibly informed Rockne or his representative that "scholastic requirements for Notre Dame were too low" to permit the Catholics playing either the Bears or Cardinals, Rockne is out for blood. He will encourage his Gallopers to roll up the biggest score possible against the Redshirters, Old Dame Rumor has it.

Wanted Trojans

There is no question that when Rockne left Los Angeles last fall he thought it was decided Notre Dame would play the University of Southern California here New Year's Day. He is now quoted as saying at that time he did not want to play either Stanford or California. U. S. C. fans would have one believe Rockne is very much put out because the Trojans were given the mitt by the Tournament of Roses committee and Stanford selected to play the Catholics.

If Notre Dame has the edge on the Stanford outfit as much as many fans think, watch for a killing. This is the first appearance of Rockne's men aainst a Pacific coast eleven and the result of the contest will be considered by many as a test of eastern, middle-western, and farwestern football standing.

Davis J. Walsh Has Alibi All Prepared In Case Four Horsemen Unseated

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—It might be well for the many who are pleased to regard Notre Dame as a walk-in against Stanford on New Year's Day, to recollect that all too few eastern and middle western teams have been able to invade Pasadena and bring their best form with them.

The climatic change is too abrupt, for one thing. The transcontinental journey dulls the fine edge of condition, for another.

In view of this, Notre Dame will have an excellent alibi if it loses. Whether it actually will need one is a question. There isn't the slightest guarantee that the so-called Irish are a better team than Stanford in the first place. The Horsemen have been rated the leading eleven of the country on their record and not without reason. But the fact remains that the coast is the only section through which no line of comparison can be drawn. For all anyone knows, coast football—and therefore the speed of its leading team—may have been several steps faster than that of any other section during the late season.

Records Against Them

It seems to me that this lack of certainty about Stanford's ability, plus the geographic handicaps, mentioned, should level all pre-game comparisons. Stanford, of course, must undergo something of a climatic change itself but this will be more gradual and less drastic than that featuring ice-bound South Bend and the Rose bowlers of Pasadena. Yet even Californians have passed the good word along that Notre Dame is a cinch.

The records of the Pasadena classic are all against it. To the eastern and Middle western teams that have visited the coast carnival, the following has happened:

Pennsylvania lost to the Oregon U., Brown was beaten by Washington, Ohio State was overwhelmed by California and Washington and Jefferson played a scoreless tie with the Bear. Harvard alone gained a decision and that by a single point from Oregon in 1920.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of the Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—There is more talk than usual in the west of a split or a radical change in the western conference. It would not be surprising if something happened in the not far distant future.

If it does it will be due to new and perplexing problems that have attended the erection of stadiums by members of the big ten and the consequent demand for home and home schedules.

Illinois, Minnesota and Purdue opened new arenas this year. Indiana, Chicago and Northwestern will have new giant play yards next year. Thus 1925 will see every member of the conference fitted out with amphitheatres of vast accommodations.

This will increase a feeling, already evident, that financial reasons alone demand that a majority of games should be played at home.

Whether the fact has been overlooked or not, it is none the less true that in an effort to get home contests big ten rivalries are being neglected. Minnesota, for example, plays the first seven of her eight 1925 football games at home in the new stadium at Minneapolis; but only two of these home games are with conference outfits.

Chicago plays five of her games at home and the sixth is with neighboring Northwestern. The seventh is down state at Urbana and the eighth is with Penna at Franklin field. Only three of Chicago's home games are with conference elevens. In order to get home contests conference rivalries are being neglected. Of teams outside the conference Notre Dame has two big ten games; Wabash three; Butler two; South Dakota 2 and Penna 2. Other outside teams that are hooked up with conference outfits are Grinnell, Nebraska, Carleton, Depauw, Iowa state, Wooster, Ohio Wesleyan, Michigan aggies, North Dakota, Arkansas, Tulane, Southern California, the Navy and Columbia.

Obviously the big ten is going to increase its membership or else it is going to cease to be a schedule making unit and become only a regulatory body.

In this latter field the conference organization has been eminently successful in theory and to a large degree in practice. At the recent conference meeting, Nebraska and the Michigan aggies applied for admission and within three years a dozen other middle western colleges will be in position to claim similar recognition.

President Commutes San Jose Man's Term

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—As his only extension of Christmas clemency, President Coolidge commuted to twenty years the life sentence of John Roher, 30, a prisoner at Leavenworth penitentiary. The commutation makes the prisoner eligible for parole. Roher, a native of San Jose, Calif., deserted from the legation guard at Peking, China, in 1917. Pursued by Chinese policemen, Roher, on the plea he thought they were bandits, fired into the party and killed one. He was tried and convicted by the consular court at Shanghai.

Some of the old-timers in baseball are due to retire before the coming season starts, while others will draw rocking chair berths in smaller loops. CARTOONIST SORDS has given his impression of a few players whose manly forms will not grace the diamond in 1925 as they have in past years.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News.

To the host of young ballplayers who first flashed across the diamond horizon last season the coming year of 1925 looms roseate and cheery.

To men who are plunging along at the zenith of their careers it means another year in which to add to their prestige and records—another six months in which to write more plainly in the book of fame their names and deeds.

But to half a hundred members of the Big Time the coming season—and it looms near already—marks the beginning of the sorrowful journey down the long, long trail to Forgottendom.

Some of these, it is true, will step temporarily into "rocking chair" jobs in the major league parlor, but others will step out of fast company and fade into the shades of baseball night—the night that never ends.

The list is indeed long.

The two greatest stars in the fading firmament are Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, long rivals for the honor of being the world's greatest centerfielder as well as the world's brainiest player.

Both of these men are booked to step out of active playing circles before another campaign rolls by and become bench managers. From active management of their clubs both will later step into the magnating class and the background.

From the rank and file a small legion of veterans seems destined to step out before another season ends. This legion includes:

National leaguers—Dodgers—Zack Wheat, Dutch Ruether, Bert Griffith, Milton Stock. Giants—Hank Gowdy, Bill Southworth, Frank Snyder, Heinie Groh. Braves—Stuffy McInnis, Ray Powell. Phillies—Cy Williams, Walter Holke, Joe Oeschger, Mitchell. Pirates — Max Carey, Walter Schmidt. Cinci—Brush (already gone), Rube Benton, Ivy Wingo. Cardinals—Hi Myers. Cubs—Grover Alexander.

American leaguers—Washington—R. Peckinpaugh, Walter Johnson, Allen Russell, Nemo Leibold. White Sox—Eddie Collins, Harry Hooper, Ray Schalk, Urban Faber. Detroit—Derrill Pratt (released), George Dauss. Cleveland—George Burns, Sherrod Smith. Red Sox—Steve O'Neill, John Collins, Bobby Veach, Jack Quinn. Yankees—Everett Scott, Bob Shawkey, Wallie Schang. Athletics—Amos Strunk.

The departure of these men, one by one, will give the fans much food for thought, new "old timers" to talk about and in many cases will leave gaps in the "sentimental" side of baseball that will be hard to fill.

Attempts by French shoe manufacturers to reintroduce the high shoe for women's wear has proved unsuccessful.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Boxing impresarios prepared today to set 'em up in the other alley and let the game go on. Eddie Christopher Columbus Cannonball Martin returned from fifteen rounds Friday night with Abe Goldstein's bantamweight crown. But the title passing was won and lost by so narrow margin it is practically certain that the two 118 pounders will meet again.

None of the candidates waiting on the new champion's doorstep look dangerous. Joe Lynch from whom Goldstein won the title is through and certainly none of the bantams who appeared in the preliminaries to the main bout showed anything like Cannonball's calibre.

Abe, the bantam throne abdicator, could not hold off his shorter-armed opponent. Goldstein has a great left jab and is supposed to have a right cross to go with it but the Brooklyn boy kept coming to close quarters and toward the finish Goldstein began to lose speed although he finished with a rush in the thirteenth and fifteenth rounds.

Louise Glaum who was a star in fillums when Two-Gun Bill Hart was beginning to rob overland stages is having a hard time attracting attention of producers. Already she's bought all 1925 sleeveless ballroom models turned out in Paris. She has played golf, given long dissertation on dogs and told world how she was going to spend Xmas but not a tumble.

Louise has forgot only one old standby that's always good—she hasn't turned down 18 offers to star in Germany, England, Czecho-Slovakia and Ireland. That's always good—whether you get the offers or not. Keep at it Louise, someone will fall yet.

Lulu Rattlebrains, fired from Sennett "lot" because she kicked when they wasted too many custard pies on her, has formed a company of her own. Nothing original in that Lulu but it's always good for a couple of sticks in fillum page. Why not try and think once in a while—maybe you'll get a bright idea and marry a bootlegger.

Harriette ran true to form when she selected among others, "Ruddy" Valentino as one of dozen lovers. Tom Meighan was included as was Ricardo Cortez and Ramon Navarro.

Now "Ruddy" comes out in a long-winded interview in L. A. Times saying women don't love him—they love his work. Leave it to a fillum actor to do "art for art's sake." They despise praise like Coolidge loves Wilbur.

"Ruddy" gave his barber a Xmas present of his red whiskers. After startling feminine hearts in New York and Hollywood with 'em he has decided they have lost their usefulness.

Among other useless words he used in that long-winded interview which must have been a great help to the Times make-up man in getting the dramatic section away, if it served no other purpose, he gives all credit for his "discovery" to June Mathis who penned the screen version of the Ibanez description of Knute Rockne's back field. "Ruddy" was one of the "four horsemen." Why June should get the credit no one knows but "Ruddy."

The Times submitted another classic in a two-col. story of a lot of words about Patsy Ruth Miller "just dying" to "revel in tragedy". Well—they do everything else in the movies—why not revel in tragedy. These fillum actresses must get their names in the paper.

FOOTBALL

Eight players who graduated from Southern California high schools, all regular members of Coach Glenn Warner's starting eleven, will line up with Stanford and the West against Notre Dame and the East in the annual intersectional football clash at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, on New Year's Day.

The Stanford men who will play before home folks for the first time this season are:

Harry Shipkey, tackle, of Fullerton.

Charles Johnston, tackle, of Los Angeles Poly.

Bill Neill, guard, of Santa Monica.

George Baker, center, of Santa Ana.

Fred Solomon, quarterback, of Los Angeles Poly.

Murray Cuddeback, halfback, of Los Angeles Poly.

Lawson is an almost unanimous choice for All Coast right end this season and in addition was named on a number of all-American teams.

The Shipkey brothers of Fullerton are among the fastest members of the Cardinal organization. Ted being especially adept in handling passes and Harry shining in defensive linework.

George Baker came to Stanford without any football experience, but developed into a good center under Warner. He was not outplayed by Horrel of California, All-Coast center, in the California-Stanford game, November 22. Neill, when in condition, is Stanford's best guard.

Solomon directed the final eight minute attack which scored two touchdowns against the Golden Bears, and Murray Cuddeback, who crossed the goal line with the tieing touchdown, was the most brilliant surprise of the Stanford season.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Ban Johnson has worried so much over rumors of dishonesty in baseball that it has become an obsession with him, hence the impetuous interviews which offended Judge Landis and resulted in his removal from the advisory council of baseball.

"Anonymous letters, purporting to give information of crookedness have preyed on Johnson," said writer's informant, "and he has attempted in every way a man could to get further information. No communication came into the American league office which he did not give his personal attention, if there was anything in it that reflected upon the honesty of baseball.

"Since the scandal in his own league Johnson has given more and more thought to every report circulated that had any bearing on the honesty of the game or the integrity of the players. Johnson was brought up in the old baseball school, the days of the early '80's when honesty of the game was preached day and night after an experience the National league had when Billy Hulbert fired four players out of the circuit for life.

"With this trait in his character and with the thought he had in his mind to keep baseball clean and honest, the suddenness of the announcement of the alleged bribery attempt on the very eve of the world series excited him to a pitch of frenzy and he exploded, in my opinion."

Judge Landis has never forgiven Johnson for things he said when the Dolan-O'Connell scandal broke. It was these interviews that convinced the Judge that he and Johnson could no longer serve on the same advisory council.

What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to Glendale Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of a Glendale resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Harry Woods, prop. shoe repair shop, 214 W. Stocker St., says: "I had backache and pains through the small of it, which were caused from working at my bench. A few Doan's Pills relieved me and I am glad to recommend them."

The above statement was given February 7, 1920, and on May 10, 1924, Mr. Woods said: "I always keep Doan's Pills on hand, and they never fail to relieve me of the slightest attack of backache and kidney trouble."

'Zero's' Ragged Army to March On Wall Street

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—A regiment of the hopeless, led by "Mr. Zero," champion of the jobless, is scheduled to march on the New York financial district tomorrow. This ragged army, "Mr. Zero" said today, will stage a silent demonstration in front of the offices of rich vestrymen of Trinity church.

"We hope, through this demonstration," said Urbain L. Ledoux, who is "Mr. Zero," "to get the use of St. Augustine chapel to shelter jobless men. The congregation of St. Augustine has only 50 persons. The church would house 1,000 men who have no shelter."

Man Arrested In Still Raid Is Being Held

Emilio Ramelli of 624 West Elk avenue, arrested Sunday morning by Glendale police officers, after a raid had disclosed what they declared was a "still" in full operation on his premises, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Frank H. Lowe of the Glendale police court and fined $500 each on counts of possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor.

On a third count, on which he is charged with manufacturing liquor in violation of the Wright act, Ramelli was ordered to appear before Judge Lowe on January 9, for a preliminary hearing, and his bail was set at $1000 to guarantee his appearance on that date.

Ramelli is being held at Glendale police headquarters, pending an effort on the part of his friends to raise the $2000 cash needed to release him.

Dry Agents' 'Still' Hunt Ends In Victim's Death

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 23.—One man was dead today and two others wounded as the result of a search for distilleries by four prohibition agents. L. E. Story, driving an automobile, was struck by a bullet from an agent's rifle while trying to escape and was killed. Later the officers went to the home of E. R. Bishop, where they shot E. C. Blankenship who fled after being ordered to halt. A third man whose name was not learned, was shot in the leg, but not seriously injured.

Blizzard Hits Midwest Promising 'White Xmas'

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—The heralded blizzard swept into Chicago today, bringing warmer temperatures and a promise of a "white Christmas." Snow was falling today in virtually every section of the midwest, making worse the already badly drifted roads. The fall started shortly after midnight, and this morning was continuing, with no prospect of clearing, the weather bureau said.

California's Volcano Is Steaming Up Again

WESTWOOD, Dec. 23.—Mount Lassen, California's live volcano, is steaming up again. Huge clouds of smoke and volcanic ash were emitted from the eastern volcanic pit of the mountain late yesterday afternoon, being plainly visible here. Snow fields prevent close observation but it was said by observers that it was unusual for eruptions to be witnessed at this distance unless in progress for sometime.

BANK BANDITS BUSY

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 23.—A lone bandit held up Allen Evans, collector for the Home Savings bank, shortly before 10 o'clock this morning and robbed him of $7000 cash.

TOURISTS NOW ARRIVING IN NUMBERS

Increased Travel From East Causes New Sections Added To Trains

Increased tourist travel from the east and middle-west during the past ten days has resulted in extra sections being added to all overland trains of the Union Pacific railroad, according to E. F. Deigert, assistant general passenger agent who is in Glendale on business today. Two sections on all west bound trains have been maintained during the past week and a third section was necessary to care for the overflow on several occasions, he said. This indicates the upward trend tourist travel has taken recently as compared with the fall and early winter months, Mr. Deigert declared.

A large post-holiday business is expected when the usual rush westward commences immediately after New Year's. A good tourist year is anticipated if the travel after January 1 comes up to expectations, Mr. Deigert said.

Republicans To Press Stand On Insurgents

porter, will be up for re-nomination.

Undoubtedly the La Follette forces will enter a candidate in Republican primaries to defeat Lenroot and the latter has for several months seen that he had a fight ahead of him. The White House was urged repeatedly before the last national convention to make war on the La Follette group but it was deemed by the White House strategist unwise to precipitate a conflict until after Mr. Coolidge had been nominated. The action of the Wisconsin delegation at the convention followed as it was by the La Follette candidacy for the presidency, left the administration no alternative, however, and from that time forward the Republican national committee began to realize that it must build up a new organization in Wisconsin or rather strengthen the regular Republicans who had been making the fight year after year against La Folletteism with heavy odds.

Usually the La Follette people have been helped in the Republican primaries by democratic votes. The Lenroot forces know now that conservative democrats can be drawn to a republican ticket when a radical is in the race and there is no doubt that the Lenroot campaign will need Democratic support.

The use of patronage may or may not be of value, so far as actually getting votes. But it has a great deal to do with the spirit of an organization. If, for instance the workers understand that they can hope for rewards at Washington when they support for congress men who are not recognized by their own party organization and who, of course, can expect nothing from the democrats if the latter come into power, the whole problem of political organization in local precincts is likely to be made very difficult.

The theory back of political appointments is that deserving workers get rewards. The opposition usually attacks this system as the "spoils system." That political offices are traded for support is not a demonstrable proposition as a rule, but the La Follette people will not hesitate to develop a controversy over it in the hope that sympathy will come to them as they feel themselves being punished for trying to make the Republican party a "progressive" instrumentality. Already there are signs that even friends of the administration in some western states doubt the wisdom of sending eastern money to western primaries and warnings are given that the surplus preserved by the Republican national campaign committee after the last election should not be used for the purpose.

Western View

The Lincoln (Nebraska) State Journal, which supported Coolidge, says that a "westerner could think of no more certain way than this to insure the nomination of these (insurgent) senators," and that "if Pennsylvania and New York are to furnish money to control western primaries, they will need to be very secretive about it."

Senator Capper's own paper, the Topeka (Kansas) Capital, adds that the national committee "has more western than eastern men on it and will hardly fall for this political game; if it should, new western men undoubtedly would be elected to represent the west."

Eastern conservatives have felt that in order to retain a congress amenable to the Coolidge program some strenuous efforts should be made and a course of action adopted even at this early date to keep the Republican party clear of radicals. The move to use patronage is in line with that program.

San Diego Man Draws Long Term on Boxing

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 23.—Fire Chief Louis Almgren of San Diego drew the long term appointment on the new state boxing commission when Governor Richardson filed the commissions of his appointees with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan today. Almgren's term will end January 1, 1928.

REALTY BOARD REPORT IS EXPECTED

Decision on Definite Steps To Improve Listing System Expected This Week

Definite decision on the proposals for improvement of the existing multiple listing system of the Glendale Realty Board is expected when the board holds its regular meeting Thursday noon at the Egyptian Village cafe. The entire session will be thrown open for a thorough discussion of the proposed changes in the system which would provide for a multiple listing group to cooperate in the listing, advertising and selling of properties.

A revised system, which it is urged, will be an improvement over that employed now, was worked out and presented for consideration by the multiple listing committee, headed by J. I. Wernette, chairman. At two meetings the proposed changes have been taken up but without any definite action resulting. At the close of the meeting Thursday a vote will be taken to determine the course of the board.

"The intention of the committee is not to change or do away with the present multiple listing system of the board, but to improve it. Although there has been much discussion and several special meetings to talk over the proposed changes, there has been no radical disagreement or friction. It is merely the object of the board to thrash the matter out thoroughly before adopting the plan and to first be sure it is the right thing to do," said Mr. Wernette.

Ambassador's Proposal Meets With Objection

France, he said, intends to pay her debt, but she needs a long time moratorium, or breathing spell, in which to recover her financial stability, and she also considers that the magnitude of her war losses entitled her to special consideration in the matter of terms. Inferentially, the ambassador left the impression that the terms of the British settlement would not be satisfactory to his government, although he did not say so in so many words.

While no definite offer of French terms has yet been made, the French have put forward the impression they would be satisfied with nothing less than a ten to fifteen year moratorium, a rate of interest less than the British, say around 2 to 2½ per cent, and payments stretched over a period of some ninety years.

British Basis Fair

Administration officials feel that the British settlement affords a fair basis of settlement of all the war debts. This settlement was based on an interest rate of 3 to 3½ per cent, with payments stretched over sixty-two years.

No official comment for publication could be obtained today anent M. Jusserand's speech either at the White House or at the treasury department.

Council of Ambassadors Decides to Postpone Meet

By FRANK MASON
For International News Service.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—The council of ambassadors, scheduled to meet tomorrow to consider the report on German disarmament, today announced it had postponed the meeting until Friday, to give the council added time to digest the contents of the report.

Though Germany has been busy, through Ambassador Von Hoesch, seeking the evacuation of Cologne by January 10, the date originally scheduled, there was a strong feeling here today that the contents of the disarmament report would lead to a postponement of this date.

Ambassador Von Hoesch has argued that unless Cologne is evacuated, Germany will not be able to select a government capable of carrying out the Dawes plan, to which the foreign office has replied that if execution of the Dawes plan rests on so slender a foundation, it might be often in jeopardy. Reports that Germany has not carried out the disarmament terms of the Versailles treaty have led to the belief that evacuation will not be carried out.

Favors Postponement

LONDON, Dec. 23—The foreign office announced today that England's feeling is that evacuation of Cologne should be postponed by the council of ambassadors at least until investigations of the German disarmament situation have been completed.

Mexico to Push School Building Over Country

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 23.—The department of education will ask and probably receive an extraordinary appropriation of 20,000,000 pesetas, it was announced today, to inaugurate the emergency expansion of the educational system. This is the first step in the plan of Secretary of Education Puig Casuarano and President Calles to put a school in every rural community.

Bootleggers' Nemesis

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—News of the appointment of Police Captain Charles Goff as general prohibition enforcement agent for California fell as a bombshell in bootlegging circles this afternoon.

Goff is known as the "nemesis of bootleggers" and his reign as chief enforcement officer is expected to inaugurate a general shakeup of dry enforcement and presage the most arid period California has known since prohibition.

As an officer in the police department, Goff gained fame as a law enforcement officer and he is also known as an executive and organizer.

He will retire from the San Francisco police department immediately, it was said, to take up his new duties.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Reactionary tendencies prevailed in most of the speculative and commodities markets today. Some improvement was noted in the stock and grain markets as the session advanced, but markets were generally under the influence of the holiday season with traders more concerned about conserving profits than taking on new commitments over the Christmas holidays.

Further adjustment of banking reserves, in preparation for the January interest and dividend disbursements, necessitated the calling of loans made on the stock exchange collateral, and call loan rates as a consequence moved up from 3½ to 5 per cent, the highest since May of this year. This was not unexpected and was without particular effect on the market.

Trading in the first three hours was in the smallest volume of any similar period since the upward movement started last month, the total transactions for that period being about 850,000 shares. Prices declined from 1 to 7 points from the high levels of the opening with the reactionary trend affecting all departments.

Today a dividend record was favorable with three new additions to the dividend class and one company, Pittsburgh Coal, passing the regular disbursement to stockholders. The resumption of Anaconda dividend resulted in an annual demand for the stock, which moved up more than 2 points to a new high at 44⅜; Magma, Kennecott, Miami, Utah, Utah Securities and Inspiration Cooper, moved up into higher levels.

The oils displayed a reactionary tone when reports of the latest developments from the Northern field, showing the prospect of a flow of 100,000 barrels of crude oil by the end of the week were received.

Stock sales 1,096,000, shares bonds $13,175,000.

Blast Leads Officers To Large Still

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.— A terrific explosion when one of a battery of stills blew up today, rocked an exclusive section of Hollywood and brought the police dry squad to the scene on the run. They arrived too late to catch the distiller, but got two 100 gallon stills, eight barrels of alcohol and seventy-five cases of what the officers termed a "mysterious" liquor. Fire which followed the blast, for a time threatened the mansion distillery with destruction.

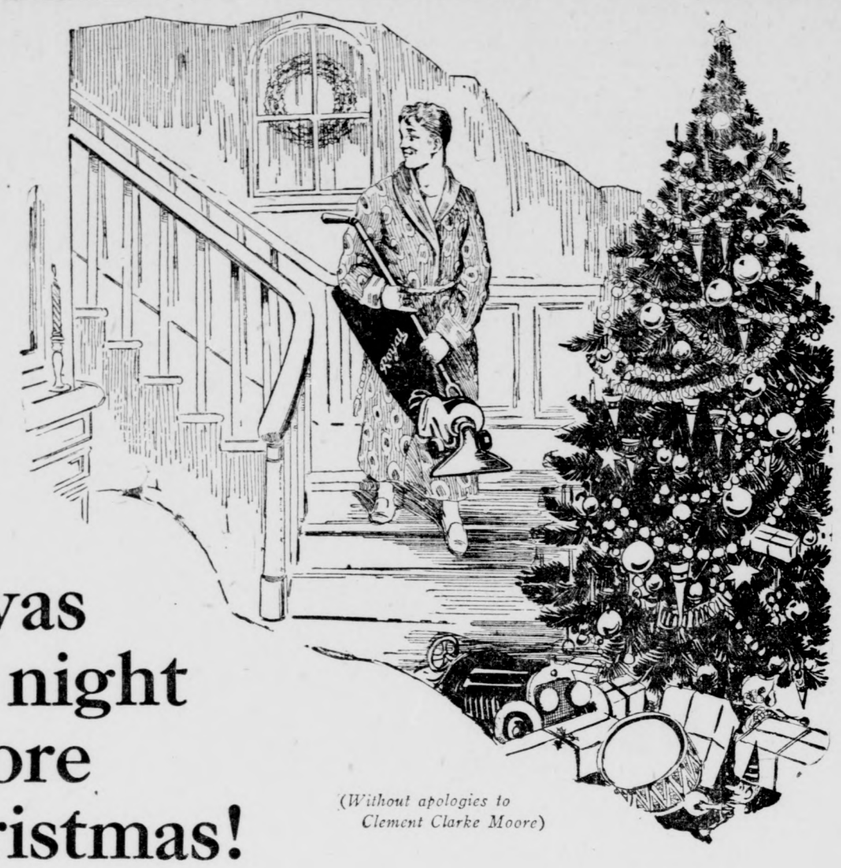
LEASED WIRE REPORT BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE



'Twas the night before Christmas!

(Without apologies to Clement Clarke Moore)

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung, the tree was in place,
When dad came down stairs with a smile on his face.
Under one arm was a strange looking pack,
And a bundle of toys was flung on his back,
His eyes—how they twinkled! His smile was so merry,
He looked like some kind of a big jolly fairy!
But what was the thing he carried there?
That he laid by the tree with tenderest care?

Bright and graceful, it stood like a king—
Royal among gifts—a most beautiful thing!
He nodded his head—a smile wreathed his face,
And he said to himself, "This will win a fine place
By saving her time, which will give her more leisure
For tennis and golf and such kind of pleasure."
Then filling the stockings, he tip-toed the stair,
And crawled into bed to await the sun's glare.
Do you know what he bought? How could it be plainer?
——A ROYAL Electric Vacuum Cleaner.

The best part of dad's gift was this: He made a real gift that only cost $5 down—the balance being paid at about the same rate per month

WALL STREET SEAT WON BY 'GOB'

Youngster Member On Stock Exchange Gets $101,000 Berth at 24

By C. G. MARSHALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Six years ago he was only a "gob" in the navy at thirty per. Today, he is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, owner of a seat worth $101,000.

That tells in a few words the romantic rise of John C. Heffernan, aged 24, who appeared on the floor of the exchange for the first time last Thursday and was accepted as the youngest member of the most exclusive—and most expensive—club in the world.

Mr. Heffernan did not win his seat on the exchange by making an immense sum of money through speculation in the stock market. He won it by faithful attention to the business of the brokerage firm by which he was employed, Richards, Pell and Hume. Within the short span of a week, he has jumped from the position of a salaried employe to the role of a partner in the firm, sharing in its profits. And the profits of a big brokerage firm are not small in these times of two million share days in the market.

In other periods of unusual activity in Wall street, other brokerage houses have found it necessary to increase their membership on the floor of the exchange in order to handle all their business. But on such occasions it usually has been some old and faithful employe who has been rewarded by the firm's purchasing a seat for him. In this case, it was a very young employe and length of service with this particular firm was just three years.

Left Navy Flat

Mr. Heffernan began his career in Wall street in 1915 as a clerk in the brokerage firm of H. N. Whitney and Sons. In those days, he never even dreamed that he would one day be a member of the stock exchange. Probably that still was beyond the range of his ambition two years later when he threw up his job and joined the navy. The war ended before he had a chance to become an admiral but he was promoted to quartermaster before he left the navy flat on its back and returned to his old desk in "the street."

Three years ago, he changed firms because he thought the new one offered him a better opportunity for advancement.

It probably would ruin many a young man to be advanced so rapidly, but members of Wall street firms are pretty good judges of men—they have to be. Many of the leaders in the financial district today got their start just like young Mr. Heffernan.

In Austria the cost of living jumped 10 per cent during last October alone.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—Estelle Taylor, actress, and amour of Jacques Dempsey, received a Christmas present that came a year late.

Ton Loy, American educated Chinese, living in Harbin, Manchuria, mailed a pair of magnificent yellow satin embroidered slippers to her last July, when he heard that her sister's dog chewed up one pair given her last Christmas.

Ton Loy notified her the dye in the satin was poisonous, so dog, beware! It is the thirty-eighth pair of slippers Miss Taylor has received since the story of the slipper-chewing dog was broadcast from here eleven months ago.
